The ECI and You – creating a winning combination

Happy New Year Everyone

It's my new year's resolution to win more, no, I don't mean cheating at Trivial Pursuit, it's a question I sometimes ask clients, "what do we need to do to make you the winner here? The answer very often is to "give" a bit (or more often a lot!) more of something, so, I've been looking for genuine examples of people who give, and didn't have to look much further than the ECI's very own Barbara Dalpra as a prime example.

Barbara is an exemplary woman who gives on so many levels on a daily basis. The most recent example of this was her taking time out from running her busy coaching practice and her ECI duties to fly over to Ireland to support Paula King of Executive Coaching at the graduation ceremony of Paula's first 14 women graduates.

As Paula's course is accredited by the ECI, Barbara has willingly given her own full support as Deputy CEO of the ECI, and wanted to be there to meet with the graduates and to explain what their recent ECI membership meant to them.

The graduates felt privileged that someone of Barbara's calibre was there to meet with them and Paula was also grateful for her support and hey, guess what, Barbara had a great time too (how could she fail to with that fabulous Irish hospitality). Win Win WIN...

If you have a course that you wish to have accredited or are currently studying and would like to know if your course is accredited by the ECI, please check the website http://www.europeancoachinginstitute.org/coach_training/.
