

The Inaugural ECI Australasian Coaching Conference, Sydney 2008. Sponsored by askacoach.com

SPECIAL EVENT INVITATION KEYNOTE BY SIR JOHN WHITMORE Raising Our Game: The Challenges and Opportunities for the Coaching Profession FRIDAY 21ST NOVEMBER 6PM – 7:30PM

Coaching has come a long way in its 20 year life, and it is now widely accepted and sought after in the world of work, but are we becoming complacent, are we missing great opportunities?

Globalisation, instant communication, terrorism, economic instability and climate change are challenging our leaders like never before and how willing, but more importantly, how able are we to provide the support that is so urgently needed.

Yes, we work on their agenda but is that enough? Where is our knowledge, and what is our responsibility and range of skills to cope well with big issues? Furthermore the huge institutions of education, of healthcare, of local government, the police, the armed forces in different parts of the world are all waking up to the need for a new management and leadership style based on coaching. Who has the capacity and capability to meet these needs which demands the ability to work with large numbers?

I will raise these and other important and urgent issues facing the coaching community and explore how we can get better prepared to become a mature profession.

The Future of Coaching: Embracing the Opportunities of the 2010s
